

Constitution of the British Columbia Indigenous Justice Association

The name of the Society is:

British Columbia Indigenous Justice Association

The purposes of the society are:

The British Columbia Indigenous Justice Association will advocate a holistic and collaborative approach for Indigenous Justice practices in the province by prioritizing:

1. To work from a place of respect, dignity, and cultural integrity with other community justice partners
2. To ensure inclusion of the indigenous justice practices in the existing justice system
3. To educate, preserve and promote Indigenous practices throughout the criminal justice system.